> Triumphs of Easter. Glorious Easter morn is here, Peerless morn of all the year; Hearts and voices gladly sing Anthems to our Easter King.

Death's dominion now is o'er Fear is banished from the tom Joy illumines sorrow's gloom. Song-birds flutter on the wing Earth unfolds the garb of spring; Lillies sweet perfume the air, Nature glows divinely fair.

Life triumphant now is free Christ hath won our liberty; Evermore in Him is found

Purified from mortal blight, Out of darkness into light May our spirits rise and shine With a glory all divine. EDWARD S. BLACK
